Perjured Himself For a Wife.

GALVESTON, Tex., April 24.—Some what of a sensational elopement took place in this city to-day. Benjamin Barnes, a prosperous bricklayer residing in the East End, has a buxom daughter with whom Henry Oppermann, a young man, became deeply enamored. The young lady evidently reciprocated, but her parents sternly opposed the alliance. It is the old story. To-day the young couple outwitted the old folks, hastily proceeded to the county clerk's office, at once procured a license, departed immediately thereafter to inquire for James J. Spann's office and were at once applied. From thence they went to the depot to take an outward train, when the irate father accompanied by an officer arrested the happy bridegroom on a warrant charging him with perjury. He was taken to the police station where a bond of $500 was required for his appearance to answer the charge or go to jail. In the meantime the weeping bride was taken to the home of her indignant parents, where she is kept under close surveillance. Oppermann after some difficulty secured an acceptable bondsman and is at liberty. The bride's father hearing of the movements of the young couple instantly swore out a warrant against his objectionable son-in-law, charging him with falsely swearing his daughter was of legal age, when he knew to the contrary. Oppermann will have a preliminary hearing to-morrow, and the outcome will be watched with interest.

Election Huddle—Editors.

EL PASO, TEX., April 24.—The investigation of frauds perpetrated at the late election has been continued with no new developments, except there were sixty persons who voted in the ward who are entirely unknown to the bona fide residents thereof. J. G. Rowe, author of last year's city directory and who is getting up the new one, testified that if any of these persons, with one exception, resided in the ward he was not aware of it and did not have their names on his list. The attorney for the usurping mayor and the late mob filed a motion in the district court to dissolve the injunction which restrains them from acting as city officers. Judge Falvey read the application, and informed the attorney that he would hear the question argued on the 6th of May.

The Texas press committee have raised between $1500 and $2000. The editors will be relieved in good style and a large trade procession will be given in their honor.

The Consequence of Jealousy.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 24.—W. H. McDaniel was to have been examined at Warren to-day, as suspicious pointed to his having murdered his wife, who he says committed suicide last Thursday, but a special to-night says McDaniel waived an examination and was committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury. He says his wife, a beautiful young woman, blew her own brains out. He had been jealous of her for some time and accused her of inconstancy, and that bitter feeling existing between the two was well known. The day Mrs. McDaniel was killed they had a quarrel and his wife started to go to her father's. Her husband persuaded her to return to her home, when he again uttered the bitter accusations. As he states, driven to frenzy by his harsh and cruel language, the poor girl seized a loaded pistol from the shelf and pointed at her unfeeling husband, as if about to avenge herself on him, then turned the muzzle to her own head, pulled the trigger, and she fell to the floor a corpse. This is the story as related by the husband.

Ways of a Nice Young Man.

DALLAS, April 24.—A draft for $100 on Sanger Brothers of this city drawn through the German National bank of Little Rock and signed by H. B. Sanger, reached this city to-day. It is needless to say that this draft is a fraud of the first water. He is going through this country representing himself as a member of the firm of Sanger Bros. of Dallas. He was first heard of in Austin about two weeks ago. After borrowing money from first one party and then another he went to a baggage and gave an inmate a draft on Sanger Bros. for $250. The inmate alluded to found next day that all her diamonds were gone. From that place he went to Corsicana and represented himself to some as Weinberger and collected money from the generous citizens on the plea that he was in distress and wanted to get to his home in Arkansas. To others he represented himself as Ben Sanger, of the firm of Sanger Bros., and borrowed money on the credit of the house, and now comes the Little Rock episode. This draft was endorsed by a woman, Dora West. The description of the man is given as a young man, well dressed, sandy mustache and weighing about 145 pounds.

Mr. Yeakum Made to Mrs. M. H. Komar.

SAN ANTONIO, April 25.—General Manager B. F. Yeakum, of the San Antonio and Aransas Pass rail road, in an interview to-day, said that they were pushing the extension of that road to north Texas from Waco with all possible haste. The continual rainy weather of the spring season has considerably delayed construction, but now as the ground is becoming dry again, grading and track laying will begin with renewed energy. From West Point the road will run north and intersect the Houston and Texas Central at Giddings; thence on it crosses the International and Great Northern at Rockdale, and taps the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe at Cameron. From the latter point the road will go on to Fort Worth, via Waco, or may shoot direct to Paris, via Marlin to form a connection with the Frisco at Paris. From the tenor of Mr. Yeakum's remarks it is to be judged that the road, in all probability, will not go to Waco at all.

A Bad Woman's Bad Marksmanship.

BLACK JACK, TEX., April 25.—About four miles north of here to-day while surveyor Joseph Brabier and several citizens were engaged in running off some land, and had stopped to drive some stakes at a corner near the residence of John Vaughan, Mrs. Vaughan was seen leaving her house with something in her hand, and when about seventy yards off from the party she leveled a gun and fired into the surveying party but failed to hit anyone. As this failed to have the desired effect, Mrs. Vaughan came on up to them, and as she got near she discovered Mr. David Vaughan, her husband's brother, driving the stakes, and without a word of warning struck him a severe blow on the head with her gun. At this time her husband arrived on the scene of action and ordered Mr. Dave Vaughan to get off of his land, saying that he had bought and paid for it and did not want him or any other man driving stakes on it. Mr. Vaughan's injuries are slight, but it is believed that much trouble will result from this action of his brother's wife. Justice Downing immediately issued writs for all the parties, and to-morrow may develop some startling news.

After the Republic for Damages.

TEXARKANA, Texas, April 25.—The Missouri Republic on Friday, April 19, 1889, published the following: "Mr. J. Foreman, the alleged capitalist who recently started to build a railroad from Texarkana to Fort Smith, Ark., proves to be a fraud. He has skipped, and the men who worked a week grading are still unpaid, as well as other bills."

Later developments are that Mr. Foreman has not been away. Many of the men at work got their pay, though the regular pay day is not until the 15th of May. Work has never stopped on the Fort Smith road and is still going on, and Mr. Foreman now proposes to sue the Republic for libel, and lays his damage at $100,000. Judge A. L. Byrne and Hon. T. E. Webber are Foreman's attorneys and think that their case is an easy one.

A Fighting Negro—Engine Blown Up.

HUUSTON, Tex., April 25.—To-night Constable Rogers, of Montgomery county, brought in a negro named Henry Sampson and lodged him in jail. Last night, near Humble, while Sampson was lying down in his house, a colored man named Nichols, entered and, without warning, shot him, the ball entering his cheek and passing out through the back of his skull. In this condition he arose, wrested the pistol from his assailant and beat his brains out with it. He surrendered to the officers and will plead self-defense. The engine on the Columbus Tap road, when thirteen miles from Columbus, blew up while running and an engine has been sent up to the scene from this city. Miraculous as it may seem, no one on the engine or train was hurt.
